Spotlight on hearing

For former Corrie actress and Loose Women panellist, Sherrie Hewson, hearing has always played an important role in her career. Now as a happy hearing aid wearer, she wants to make sure no one else is missing out.

Why are you shouting?

'My hearing loss has been such a gradual thing that I didn't notice it at first. But I knew there must have been something wrong when my granddaughter kept saying to me 'Nana why are you always shouting?'

Hearing aids have changed

'It's very important to break down the stigma, like it was for glasses years ago.'

If you've ever felt put off by the idea of hearing aids, you'll be pleased to know that nowadays they're absolutely tiny – and packed with the latest technology. In fact, some in-ear ones are so small, you can hardly see them at all. That includes our 'invisible' hearing aids, available from £495 per pair.

'Specsavers are doing a really great job at helping people with hearing loss – they have certainly helped me.'

If you'd like to know more about hearing aids or hearing health, our experts will be happy to help.
